Glacier & Crater Lake National Parks

The Red Bus tours are part of Glacier National Park's history. They were originally put into service in the late 1930s, and then underwent a major renovation around the turn of the century. They also bring new meaning to the term "Prairie Dogging." (9/4/2006)

Running Eagle Falls

Running Eagle Falls is also known as "Trick Falls." When there is less water flowing, it flows out of the cliff as you see here. With heavy water flow, the water flows from the top of the cliff, making the fall much taller, thus playing a "trick" by changing its appearance.

Big Horn Sheep

As a Californian I know what to do if I meet a mountain lion or a bear on the trail. But what do you do if a Big Horn sheep is between you and your way home, and it shows no interest in leaving its food to clear the trail for you?
